

The Catholic Medical Association supports your right to know. Back in 1960, the developers of the birth control pill initially promoted it as a miracle drug, that would improve women's lives. However, the pill has major side effects, such as weight gain, depression, stroke, and even death. Furthermore, medical studies indicate that women who use the pill for a minimum of four years, prior to having their first baby, have a 52% higher risk of developing breast cancer. In 1960, there were five sexually transmitted diseases. Today there are many more. 20 million new cases of STDs are reported annually in the United States, with half of those infected being 15-24 year olds! To learn more, visit CathMed.org - this message is being sponsored today by the Pro-Life Educational Foundation.
